B-MCT

Metacognitive training for BPD (B-MCT) is a therapeutic approach that deals with thoughts and thought processes.

The training is designed to ...

- impart knowledge about your own thought processes and
- make you aware of typical thought distortions and how to change these

Thought distortion: unfavorable way of taking in and processing information from the environment that can lead to developing or maintaining mental problems (e.g., jumping to conclusions).

One event – many possible emotions... What leads to the different reactions?

Training module: Drawing Conclusions

Demonstration

- In the following, you will be shown a series of 3 pictures, along with several interpretations.
- The pictures will be shown in reverse order (i.e., the last event first).
- The interpretations are to be rated and re-rated on their plausibility after each picture.

Please assess the plausibility – can you decide already?

- (1) The men are fighting over a parking spot in the shade.
- (2) The man is rightly telling the other man off for occupying two spots with his car.
- (3) The driver of the gray Mercedes is undeservedly being criticized.
- (4) The two men are disagreeing about a car deal.

Jumping to conclusions

We realize: Deciding after seeing the first picture would have led to a false conclusion.

Jumping to conclusions

- We often draw conclusions (or judge people) without knowing the “full story”.

Jumping to conclusions

When do we draw conclusions without knowing the full story?

When...	Example
... we have limited access to information (no other choice)	???
... we have previous experience from which we generalize	???
... when we make a snap decision that doesn't really matter	???

Smoke is pouring out a window.	Fire?	Probably - saying: "No smoke without a fire!" - Call the fire department: Negligence may be worse than a false alarm.

Smoke is pouring out a window.	Fire?	Probably - saying: "No smoke without a fire!" - Call the fire department: Negligence may be worse than a false alarm.
A man slurs his speech.	Drunkard?	Possibly - there are a number of other explanations (e.g., dementia, stroke). If you don't consider other explanations, you might wrong or offend the other person (e.g., by showing disgust).

Why do we do this?

- Sometimes we tend to judge something or someone too hastily and as a result also act impulsively.

Why do we do this?

- Sometimes we tend to judge something or someone too hastily and as a result also act impulsively.
- This can lead to wrong decisions or imprudent actions that will soon be regretted.

Module jumping to conclusions

The following tasks are examples:

Hasty decisions often cause mistakes or make you see only “half the truth.”

Keep in mind: To err is human!

Exercises (I)

In the following you will be shown a series of pictures.

Your task is to identify the object.

Try to avoid both hasty conclusions and prolonged decision-making. Discuss evidence for and against each alternative.

Several alternative interpretations are provided.

Please discuss with the group how likely you find each option and whether you feel confident enough to decide.
